"ROUGH DRAFT"

NOTICE OF INTENT

Attn: Mr. Lowell Braxton

Dear Sir:

We are the new owners of the Happy Jack mine in San Juan county, Utah. We are NOT a mining company, and do not intend to become one. We own a small company, Rescue Systems Inc., which is a manufacturer and distributor of High Angle Rescue equipment. We sell rope based rescue equipment used to evacuate people from tall buildings, off cliffs, and to remove them from pits and vessels. Our customers are Fire Departments, Police, Ambulance and S.A.R. teams, military, Industrial plants, etc. Our sales are all mail order, as not too many people who buy our products would walk in off the street. Our interest in the site is primarily for the surface features. The cliffs and nearby canyons are excellent sites for vertical training. The remoteness of the site also lends itself to Wilderness Search & Rescue training. Our interest in the underground passages is limited to utilizing some of the areas near the surface for storage. This will depend upon the stability of the passages and the ability to ventilate them sufficiently to make entry safe.

We intend to erect a building on the mine pad to house Rescue Systems Inc. manufacturing and office operations. Also such warehousing as could not be accommodated underground would be added. We also plan to build a residence on the property just south of and above the mine pad area. As stated in the beginning of this letter we DO NOT intend to operate the mine, or engage in the removal of minerals from the mine.

Sincerely,

Kyle Isenhardt
